"DINGLEY WAGES."

In Congressman Dingley's own town is the great Androssoggin mill corporation, whose operatives are now striking against a cut of wages. The strike is no worse in Lewiston than in a good many other places; it is not so bad as some others. But how is Mr. Dingley to explain to his constituents the failure of his kind to bring them prosperity and increase their earnings? Is he willing to accept a ten per cent cut-down as the measure of "Dingley wages"?—Boston Post.

It seems a little unfair to hold Mr. Dingley's measure responsible for something with which it has absolutely nothing to do. The Republicans have been parading that old theory to the effect that a high tariff increases wages, and a number of workmen, especially through the New England States, have manifested their enthusiastic devotion to the principle. The strike in the New England mills against the proposed reduction of 10 per cent in wages should furnish conclusive proof, even to those who live in a stronghold of protection, of the fallacy of the principles which they have espoused in the past. The question of wages is determined by the law of supply and demand, or by other considerations entirely distinct from the tariff or other legislation. The cotton manufacturers of New England have been forced to reduce the wages of their employees because business conditions over which they have absolutely no control have made it impossible for them to compete with manufacturers at more favored points.

This is the whole matter in a nutshell, and the sooner the workmen of the country stop paying attention to the blatant demagogue who cries "protection and high wages," the better it will be for them and the country. Of course the demagogue may be sincere and may believe that he is espousing a wise theory, but sincerity is not always a proof wisdom.

Whether the people would choose better Senators than do the Legislatures may be determined by asking if the people choose better Governors than the Legislatures choose Senators. We think not.—Louisville Post.

Another way of arriving at the same conclusion might be by arguing that if the people cannot be trusted to elect legislators who will elect good Senators neither can they be expected to be more fortunate in their selection in the case of the higher office. This, however, by no means disposes of the question. It is the "deadlocks" and charges of bribery and corruption which seem to be inseparable from almost every senatorial contest which has a tendency to make the people weary of the present system.

We presume that Chicago Populist paper which is to have one hundred editors is trying to compete with the esteemed Congressional Record.

A feud in Kentucky always displays many of the features of an epidemic.—Houston Post.

There is a difference, however. The feud always gives employment to both the coroner and undertaker, and should thus be considered a more important factor in restoring prosperity.
